'UNITED IN GRAVEL' IN MINAKAMI, GUNMA. 'BRINGING THE WORLD OF GRAVEL TO JAPAN'.

Author - Adam Cobain

IT is with great pleasure, we wish to welcome you all to Minakami and to Grinduro Japan 2024. In less than 2 weeks, the Grinduro family will join up again as a united gravel and fun times loving family in the mountains of Gunma. The region is a haven for outdoor activity, and we can't wait to share in the beautiful scenery and the stunning Koyo (紅葉) famous in the region during the fall season. The Grinduro global team, local stakeholders and Japan based event specialists have been working hard since December 2023 to bring this global gravel cycling event to this new and welcoming region. One of the key principles of Grinduro globally is inclusivity and friendship we are honored to work with a host region that shares in this vision and wants to grow and unite gravel riders from around the world in Japan. With the support of Minakami Village, Minakami Tourism Association, Gunma Police, Outdoor Alliances, Canyons, MTBJAPAN and many more local and national partners we have created an amazing and safe venue with an 80km course taking in some of the most amazing and scenic back country trails the region has to offer. Working with our partners at Canyons and Forest and Water, we have provided grassy camping for all our devoted campers and partnered with the team at M-Festival music festival, which will run simultaneous with Grinduro. The goal of Grinduro is to unite riders and to make everyone feel welcome and be a part of something special, and from our perspective as promoters, that goal is also to bring cultures together. To unite riders not only from Japan, but from Australia and New Zealand, North America, the United Kingdom, Europe, and whoever else wants to join the Grinduro family in Japan. We believe in the value that this unity brings to everyone in and around the event, the importance it plays in our world view, how it grows our global understanding and the simple joy that riding a bike and the comradery that ensues brings to us as cyclists.

SHIMANO - United In Gravel

/In Gravel We Trust

At Grinduro we are United in Gravel. - We enjoy our rides, enjoy the company, enjoy nature and enjoy the racing. Maxin' and relaxin', together.

United in Gravel is our call to everyone, from any level, to go out and enjoy life in the saddle. It's about tackling that hill, bounding down the dirt roads and farm tracks, trails, and tarmac - or cruising the city streets and urban jungle in the best possible way. The joy of riding together in places beyond words. Just watch the video to see the beauty of riding beyond the beaten track.

Gravel is a collection of ground rock, sand, quartz, and clay - a mixture as diverse and unique as the riders the sport attracts. We leave ourselves on the tracks and accept all, no matter your strength or skillset. Riding gravel is about creating unique stories to share, building toward a healthier, more sustainable community empowered by individuality.

Whether you're out with your best friends for a post-work grind or going beast-mode bikepacking a far-off trail, you're out there, renewing your smile with every mile you ride.

So go out, explore your path, and join us in celebrating a world United in Gravel.

30 YEARS OF DIRT IN JAPAN

Interview: Nathan (aka Bene) Bennett is no stranger to the dirt of Minakami. #mtbjapan

New Zealand-born Nathan Bennett, a long-term resident of Minakami, has raced in nearly every cycling discipline—except for gravel. That might change soon, as the avid bike racer gears up to help stage the wildest edition of Grinduro Japan yet, from October 18-20.

Bennett, the racer-turned-event organiser, is the self-starting owner of MTB Japan and a prolific competitor in the Japanese bike world. A keen motocross rider as a youth, he took to downhill, dirt jumping, and cross-country mountain biking before moving to Japan in 1996 at the age of 24 where he started out as a rafting guide.

"After a few months, I was loving Minakami but less so the rafting work, so I thought I'd try MTB guiding. This quickly gained momentum, and I've now hosted more than 40,000 riders around these mountains," he explains, clearly well-versed in how to stage a good time for all abilities.

His early efforts caught the eye of Nobu Taguchi, a prominent figure in Japanese cycling known for running successful bike shops and countless events including NODA Cycling Association Cup and always sold-out NCA Cup. "We ended up riding together for an article, and it was through him that I first got sponsored by Specialized." Bennett recalls how Taguchi gave him a comprehensive introduction to the Japanese cycling scene and brought him into the core of the country's off-road community—complete with more sponsorships, invitations to big competitions, free stuff, interviews, and more.

There is an infectious energy that Bennett exudes as we chat and it's hard not to be struck by his DIY ethics, which he's clearly picked up from years of extreme sports. You learn self-reliance by being out on the trails and backcountry. If something goes wrong, he's always had to fix it himself. That mindset is now being carried over into organising Grinduro Japan: "You can't wait for things to happen; you have to make them happen."

As the discussion continues, his character feels more fitting to Southern California than the reserved culture of Japan, but if there's one thing that Bennett has succeeded at over the past 28 years, it's bringing along the locals as he shares the excitement for all things two wheels. It's this what makes him such a good fit for the global series, even if the responsibility scares him.

Now decades into this student-mentor-role, Bennett acknowledges that he wouldn't be leading Grinduro Japan without Taguchisan's guidance and support. "Hell, no," he laughs. "It's one of those 'together, we're stronger' episodes. Taguchisan has been encouraging me to run an event for years, but even he burst out laughing when I said I'd been approached to stage Grinduro in Minakami." With a metre of snow outside his window in February when he was first approached, he found it challenging to envision the landscape bustling with gravel bikes, e-bikes, MTBs, and more by autumn. But luckily, Bene admits to rolling well in unpredictable situations, even if the scale of Grinduro feels like "a hard nut to crack."

Who really is Gravel Gary??

Grinduro, the ultimate, worldwide, party-to-race-ratio gravel festival, descended on the French Grand Est region, and we asked our good friend WynTV—Wyn Masters—to cover the vibe and, of course, join in the gravel fun. Check out the from Grinduro fun here.

Shimano GRX Di2 12-Speed

New 2x12 Di2 Addition to Shimano's Legendary Gravel Group

Gravel cyclists live to be in the moment. It's why we roll out of our driveway at dawn. Why we venture down lonely, unknown dirt roads. Why we take on routes and races with unpredictable outcomes. It's also why we demand the best from our gear; expecting precise, reliable, distraction-free performance in all conditions.

Shimano understands—and embraces—these lofty expectations, knowing that even the smallest hiccup can mean the difference between fun and frustration, failure and success. It's this pursuit that defines the latest addition to Shimano's growing family of GRX gravel-specific components.

Meet the new 12-speed Shimano GRX Di2 RX825 series, which includes dual control levers refined for comfort and control, a Shimano Shadow RD+ equipped rear derailleur for better chain management, and a gravel-optimized front derailleur for precise shifting.

This suite of components brings an electronic option to the 2x12 GRX RX820 items launched last year. Like with the RX820 mechanical components, riders can tailor their gearing with the RX820 crank and its 48/31-tooth chain-rings or the RX610 crank with 46/30-tooth chainrings. At the back of the bike, both the HG710 11-36-tooth cassette and the full complement of Shimano 12-speed 11-34-tooth cassettes are compatible. sunt, sit laccabor abor serum id qui blania dolestio tatur, volum in suatur.

RX825 compatible gearing options:

- 48/31T RX820 crank
- 11-36T HG710 cassette
- 11-34T R9200, R8100, R7100 cassettes

Any of these gearing combinations pairs perfectly with Shimano's latest carbon gravel wheels, the WH-RX880. With 25-millimeter internal width and updated DIRECT ENGAGEMENT freehub, the RX880 wheels provide a vital connection between rider and road, however remote or rugged. All four of the gearing options listed above now benefit from Electrified 2x12 Gravel Gearing Options.

Shimano's WorldTour-proven Di2 electronic shifting platform. RX825 delivers a wide gear range with tight gear steps so you can spin a comfortable cadence whether hammering at the front of a racing pack, spinning solo down a quiet country lane, enjoying endless dirt road rollers, or tackling a precipitously steep backcountry climb.

Maxin' & Relaxin' with your Grinduro Family.

No one thing, or person, or brand is bigger than the sum of all of us, however, for the past 2 years, our global title sponsor Shimano have been paramount in their support of the Grinduro concept globally.

Their sponsorship has helped bring riders from around the globe together to share in their own Grinduro story and unite with each other in gravel. Also, in Japan, each Grinduro Japan edition pre and post COVID our loyal host sponsors Salsa have been there to support the vision and have always believed in the concept of inclusivity and the joining of gravel cultures of Japan with those from abroad.

The Global Grinduro story is also not complete without the support of Schwalbe, Wahoo and Leatt, where so much value and enthusiasm is brought to the event.

This global team, together with our local team of stakeholders, sponsors, local village tourism officers, police and medical that all come together, united in gravel and united in the vision to grow Japan's gravel scene and to create something special. Together we can achieve this goal and share in the success. We welcome you all to Grinduro, we welcome you all to Minakami and look forward to bringing the world of gravel to Japan.

Kindest Thanks

WE GET WHY YOU DO WHAT YOU DO!

LEATT

LEATT - No Such Thing As 'Too Much Of A Good Thing'...

/Global Sponsor

With an ever evolving range of helmets, body armor, braces, guards, hydration systems, apparel - whatever it takes to keep the committed 'Thrill seeker' safer. Yours is a confidence game. And we're in the business of making sure that you have the confidence and the equipment to push yourself faster, harder and further than you thought you could go"

The Leatt story began in 2001 when Dr. Christopher Leatt witnessed the death of a fellow motorcycle rider the weekend after his son, Matthew, began riding.

Dr Leatt began research and development of a device almost immediately, driven by a passion to protect not only his son, but all riders from the effects of catastrophic neck injuries. His first patents were filed in 2003.

The revolutionary Leatt-Brace® was developed in Cape Town, South Africa and tested by BMW engineers at their facility in Munich, Germany, with first production units sold in late 2006.

At Leatt's core is a passion to save lives!

Leatt are driven to protect the bodies and futures of athletes - professional and amateur.

Their mission is to extend our unique lab-tested and athlete-trusted performance protective gear to more sports and to more athletes globally. Trauma can affect virtually every part of an athlete's body. They started with protecting necks; and will remain technology and market leaders with product lines extended to protect more body areas. They started with protecting helmeted participants in off road motorsports; and now we protect downhill and BMX bicycle riders, but the goal is to protect more athletes in a wide range of sports with multiple product lines.

The Leatt plan is to continue to develop innovative, cutting edge products; move into high velocity winter and team sports; and address a broader range of bicycle and other popular helmeted sports.

...if it's got two wheels, Nathan Bennett will ride it.

Once the town gave the green light to host the event, Bennett's to-do list grew dramatically. His expressive eyes widen, sharing a glimpse into his inbox and the sheer number of emails that had flooded in over the past 24 hours. "Right from the beginning, I knew what had to be done, but I didn't really know where to start. We're playing catch-up on the organisational front, to be honest. There's a very specific way of doing things in Japan, with a lot of paperwork. Each trail and dirt track had to be carefully inventoried for the environment agency before we could do anything," he says with a hint of relief, having received the final permits just two weeks ago.

Just yesterday, the crew from his chosen timekeeping company, Wakita Soft, arrived to check the satellite signal strength for their chip timing system. Providing flawless timing and a smooth sign-up process is a must in Bennett's eyes—it's what can turn an event from good to great. It's clear that even as an immigrant Bennett is keen to use the local skills on hand to make sure that Grinduro Japan is through-and-through a Japanese event. With all the necessary permissions in place, he's ready to go wild shaping the route on his brand-new gravel bike, A Specialized Diverge.

Besides there being no better time to visit Minakami than mid-October when the autumn colours really pop, the Grinduro Japan team has ensured that the event coincides with the town's lively multi-day music event, M-Festival, making it a win-win for both organisers and riders, who get entry to all the shows. Research from Gravel Union shows that gravel event participation is never exclusively about the riding.

"Exactly" agrees Bennett. "The world is so small that any crazy trip could trigger a move somewhere new. I think a lot of people will fall for Minakami - there's a great outdoor community here and the terrain is really suited for Grinduro, with awesome trails that gravel bikes are perfect for looping together."

The course is a short 1.2km short and sharp effort, but with a punchy sting at the end

Stage 1 will be a test of power to weight and also whether the your bike/tyre choice was a success or not. A proper gravel climb to get your first score on the board.

The gravel road snakes its way through the hills with multiple switchbacks to keep you thinking about line choice.

Be sure to pace yourself or through caution to the wind and just smash it. Timing gate finishes at the top of the climb.

After a nice descent at the back of the Gunma Cycling Sports Centre and from the 1100M dizzying heights of the stage 1 finish you'll arrive at the Wahoo Feed Station.

STAGE 2
DON'T STOP NOW

The Wahoo vibes will get you primed for Stage 2, which starts right next to the feed, so hopefully the number of pastries consumed involved some thought of what is to come next.

A bit of climbing to begin before the trail levels and gets a bit technical. Wide tyres will thrive here, and a nice fast descent to finish the stage.

HOLD MY BENTO
1.5KM / 200M

The road to lunch involves some more action as the descent down to Norn Ski Field and MTB Japan will bring some smiles, as will the photo ops on your way back to lunch at Canyons and the Grinduro Village.

With our Grindurito friends enjoying the afternoon vibes and M-Festival, for the Grinduro riders, there is still some riding to be done.

After taking in the stunning views of Fujiwara Dam, you'll have to tackle the technical Stage 3. The lungs will burn and the legs will need a good shout at. Keep going as the view from the finish is something special and a highlight for this region, especially during the October months.

The hard work is over and now its time for the final stage and for this you take in some nice flow trail built and operated by MTB JAPAN. Just a short section, you'll have to ask Bene for his secret trail when you return to the region.

Following Bene's B-Line, the road is all downhill to the awaiting Grinduro Party and time to chat with friends and reflect on the days antics.

15. SAFETY LIGHTS... CAMERAS... ACTION...!

Note that there are a few tunnels out on course so please make sure you have a front light mounted on your bike.

16. ONSEN

It's more than just a bath. It's Tradition.

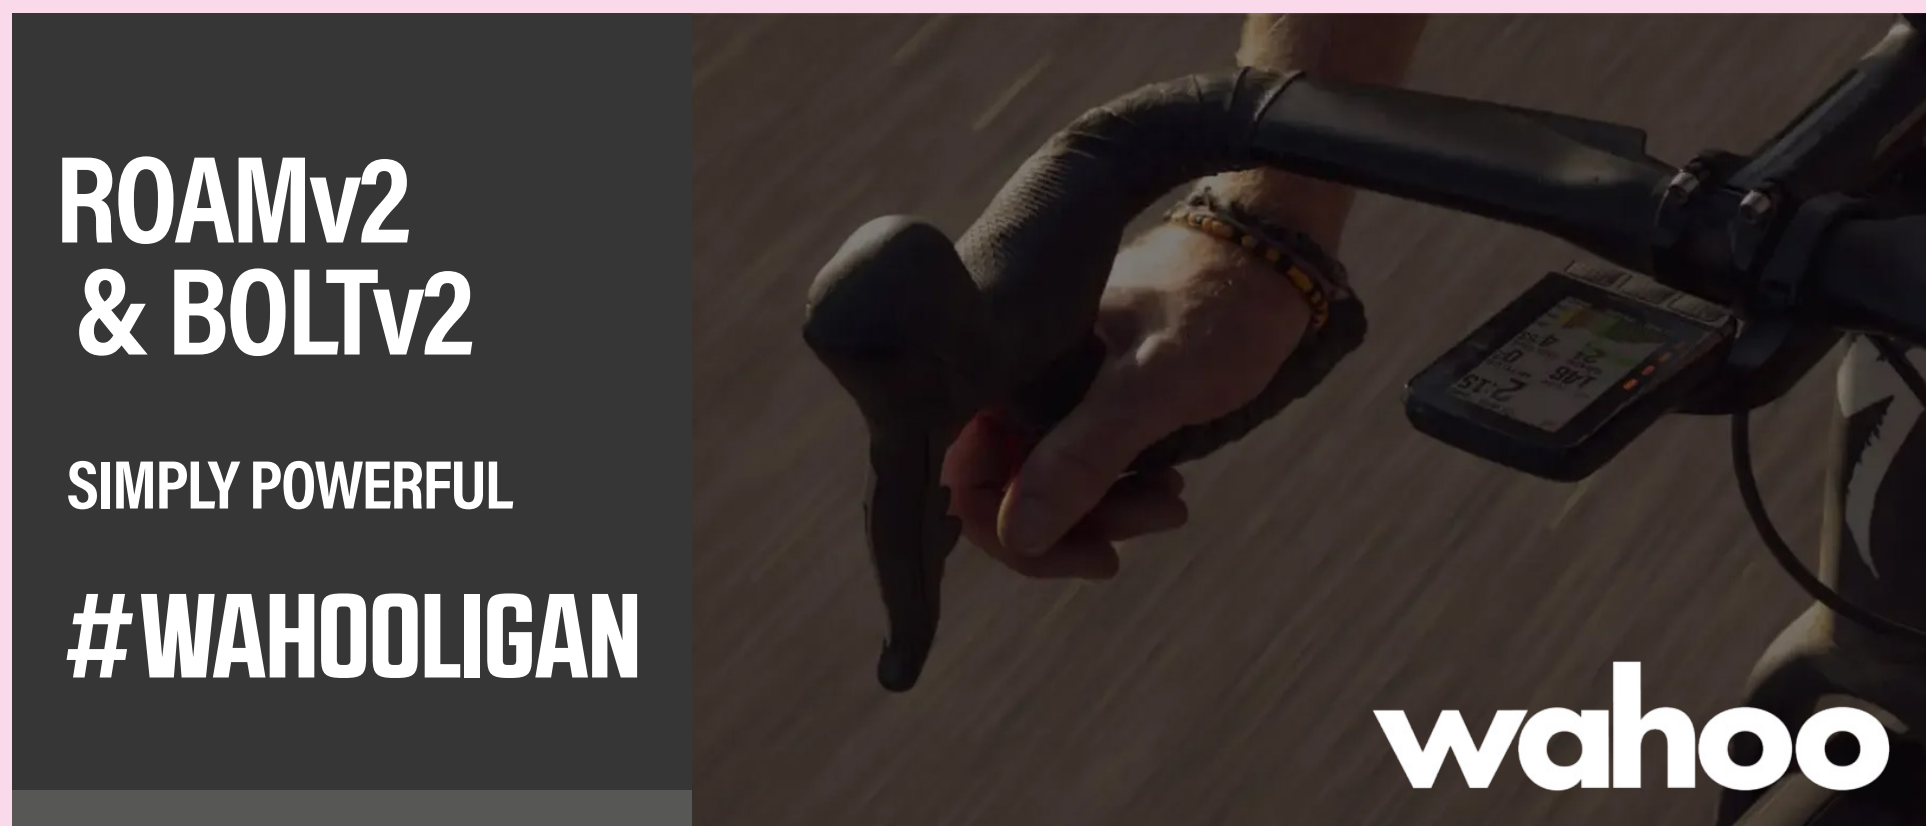

Minakami is a popular hot spring destination with some rather famous baths, including outdoor baths with beautiful views of nature. There are over a dozen separate hot spring sources found across Minakami's mountains and valleys, around which resorts of various characters have been built.

Grinduro riders have access to the beautiful Hotel Yunojin onsen for a discounted day rate of YEN1000. Tickets are only available from Tanigawa Camping office and hours are limited to use from 2PM-7PM on Friday and Saturday only.

Lunch Time: Recharge the battery at Canyons Cafe

Lunch is served at Canyons Cafe during the Grinduro or at the completion of the Grindurito. Use your Grinduro wristband to access the home-cooked menu between 10:30AM-13:30PM.

Established in 2009. "EQUIPT" is an original brand of Alternative Bicycles, a cool and mellow bicycle company.

After three and a half years of development, the ultimate compact and minimal tool "Sardine" has finally been completed.

Below is a detailed explanation of this tool from Alternative Bicycles.

For many years, bicycle portable tools have remained the same shape and have not evolved. They are box-shaped, difficult to turn, bulky, and heavy. This has been a headache for me for many years, but now I have finally arrived at this point.

This newly developed portable tool called "Sardine" is stick-shaped, lightweight (only 38 grams!), and above all, easy to use. This shape allows you to turn it quickly and shorten the work time by straightening it. And if you turn it 90 degrees without replacing it, you can apply torque to loosen or tighten bolts.

The four tool bits move freely so you can use them at any angle, and you can work in tight spaces such as when putting on and taking off a bottle cage or saddle.

By turning 180 degrees when turning, you can work quickly and with torque.

We narrowed down the tool bits to five types: 6, 5, 4, 3 hex and T25 Torx. These are the ones we use most frequently during rides. Also, it is easier to use chain cutters and smaller hexes if you have them separately.

We also made a dedicated holder. It can be attached under the bottle cage. The holder has two holes in parallel, so please choose the one that suits the thickness of your frame.

Please note that if you carry it directly in your pocket, you may get injured in the event of a fall.

Salsa's Mission

Our mission is to make the best possible bikes and accessories for adventure. The Salsa team has centuries of collective experience riding, working on, thinking about, and designing bikes. This background informs everything we do. It inspired us to develop the industry's first gravel race bike (Warbird) and full-carbon fat tire bike (Beargrease). It pushed us to dream up drop-bar bikepacking machines such as Fargo and Cut-throat. It influenced our mountain bikes' characteristic ride quality and innovative Split Pivot + design philosophy. It helped us innovate equipment ranging from handlebars to cargo. It's leading our path forward.

It has also made us believers of the idea that adventure makes life better. We've learned the life-changing power of new places, new people, extraordinary achievements, and unforgettable experiences. We want to bring this wonder to everybody, so we design our products with versatility and features for imaginative riders. We tell stories that educate and inspire. We work to build a community in which everyone feels welcome to ride with us.
